

TRANSCRIPTS Transcript Providers

Shows By Category:

Return to Transcripts main page

SHOWBIZ TONIGHT

It is time now for yet another story that just made us say, "That's Ridiculous!"

Now, the art scene in Yellow Springs, Ohio, seems to really be going to pot - or maybe I should say, pot. This town has put in an art gallery in public restrooms of all places. It's called the Chamber Pot Gallery and it's opened in the bathrooms of a local tourist attraction, which is a replica of an 1880 train station. Some of the paintings actually keep with the theme. One is called, "Got Paper?" The artist of that painting says she was inspired by that "Seinfeld" episode in which Elaine is the ladies' room stall with no toilet paper anywhere.

Of course, Brooke, you remember that particular episode. Elaine says, "Excuse ma'am," to the woman in the stall next to

ANDERSON: Right.

HAMMER: . "Have you got a square to spare?" And the woman said.

ANDERSON: "Sorry, I have no square to spare." Something like that?

HAMMER: It's a tough, tough situation to be in.

ANDERSON: Close enough. Yes it is.

A.J., can you believe it? Organizers here are hoping these art galleries attract out-of-town visitors. There's a little bike path to it, and they hope people will stop, come in, check out the art in the restrooms.

HAMMER: It's working already; I'll be there for the holiday weekend.

ANDERSON: I bet you will.

It is time now for yet another story that just made us say, "That`s Ridiculous!"

Now, the art scene in Yellow Springs, Ohio, seems to really be going to pot - or maybe I should say, pot. This town has put in an art gallery in public restrooms of all places. It`s called the Chamber Pot Gallery and it`s opened in the bathrooms of a local tourist attraction, which is a replica of an 1880 train station. Some of the paintings actually keep with the theme. One is called, "Got Paper?" The artist of that painting says she was inspired by that "Seinfeld" episode in which Elaine is the ladies` room stall with no toilet paper anywhere.

Of course, Brooke, you remember that particular episode. Elaine says, "Excuse ma`am," to the woman in the stall next to her.

ANDERSON: Right.

HAMMER: . "Have you got a square to spare?" And the woman said.

ANDERSON: "Sorry, I have no square to spare." Something like that?

HAMMER: It`s a tough, tough situation to be in.

ANDERSON: Close enough. Yes it is.

A.J., can you believe it? Organizers here are hoping these art galleries attract out-of-town visitors. There`s a little bike path next to it, and they hope people will stop, come in, check out the art in the restrooms.

HAMMER: It`s working already; I`ll be there for the holiday weekend.

ANDERSON: I bet you will.

Source: <http://transcripts.cnn.com/TRANSCRIPTS/0606/30/sbt.01.html>